Enterprise Blast Takes Two Lives
Two negro convicts were killed while three others were injured in a car crash Tuesday, when an asphalt tank exploded spilling boiling asphalt over the surrounding area.

Killed were: Andrew Jones, 37, serving 99 years for robbery from Montgomery; and Silas Menefield, 40, serving 15 years for robbery in Lee County.

Seriously injured was Jeffrey Palmer, 31, serving seven years for arson in Montgomery; Milton Wooten, 35, serving eight years for burglary and grand larceny in Mobile; and Theodore Williams, 26, serving 10 years for burglary in Jefferson county. The injured were taken to Kilby Prison hospital at Montgomery.

The convicts were leading a phant from a tank into a mixer when a spark apparently ignited fumes in the partially filled 12,000-gallon capacity tank. The explosion was felt through Enterprise and the fire raged about one and a half hours enveloping the city in smoke.

Fallout Shelter Construction Is Set
The Board of County Commissioners agreed in regular session this week, to provide the labor to level the ground on Clark Hill, on the Elba-Opp highway, to erect a fallout shelter.

Attorney Leroy Stephens, who is county attorney and captain in the Alabama National Guard told the commission that the federal government would erect the shelter if the county would prepare the site.

In other actions the board appropriated $4,500 toward operations of the State Forestry Bureau in Coffee county. Present were Probate Judge J. O. English and Commissioners Brown, Tindol, Whitman, and Bowen.

Auto Afire
A blaze in an automobile owned by Everett Askey on the Public Square Thursday, last week, was extinguished by the Elba Volunteer Fire Department after loss of about $15.00. The blaze started from a flooded carburetor. A gas fire on Highway 44 was extinguished by the firemen Monday, last week, at 7 p.m.

Reception Set
The First Baptist Church of Elba will hold a reception for the new pastor, Dr. Charles Graham, and his family next Sunday after the evening service in the social hall of the church. The public is invited.

Harold English Receives Letter From Britain Who Aided In Sea Rescue
"The ties that bind" two great English-speaking peoples were brought into renewed focus in Elba recently when Harold English, son of Probate Judge J. O. English, received a letter from a man who had figured in Harold's rescue when his ship was stricken under him during World War II.

Harold English was a member of the Merchant Marine sailing out of Mobile when his ship was torpedoed in the Mediterranean off Algeria and he floated for hours in the warm water, his legs dangling uselessly from wounds suffered in the explosion, until picked up by a British corvette, the H. M. S. Razor Bill.

Long Time Since
The letter this week came from a man who first threw him a rope when he was sighted by the ship's lookout. "All the service men were offered technical training in any trade they cared to adopt on demobilization," said the letter, from B. C. Nash, of Bristol 3, United Kingdom. "I took a fitter's engineer's course. I have been at it ever since; raised a passel of kids too, got seven sons, oldest 15 years, the youngest 3 months old."

"My wife is as pleased as I am that you still remember us and send her regards to you and yours."

"Two years ago 40 of us Reservists went to Germany as guests of the West German Navy. I went with very mixed feelings, everything went all right, all very nice and correct, but I couldn't get friendly. You know how it is, too many memories, I suppose."

Pictures On Way
The letter left Harold in suspense because it said that he had pictures of Harold's ship, the S. S. Malden Greek, just before it went under, and that he is sending the pictures by registered mail.

"We had a captured camera, took it off an Italian Admiral in Sicily (his uniform wouldn't fit or I'd had that too) anyone who took a photograph of the Malden Greek just before that second 'fish' hit her, I'll send it by ordinary mail."

Incidentally, Harold received no compensation from the government even though he was left permanently handicapped in the legs from the wounds. There is no provision for compensation to members of the Merchant Marine which is not a part of the armed services.

Dedication Sunday
The new postoffice at Daleville, Ala., will be formally dedicated in exercises set next Sunday afternoon.

Basin Meet Set
A community meeting will be held at Basin School auditorium Saturday night, Oct. 14.

Contends Public Does Not Know School's Plight

The Elba Business and Professional Women's Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday night, this week, at Public Cafe.

As closing observance of National Business Women's Week the club heard a program devoted to public schools. Speakers included Mr. Curtis Duke, Mr. Max Bowdoin, Supt. of City Schools, and Mrs. W. M. Kingsford, teacher of the Special class in the grammar school.

Mr. Duke, who has formerly served as State Director of Public Relations for the Division of Classroom Teachers, and is presently in his third year as chairman of the Public Relations Committee of Coffee County Education Association, gave the main address on "Public Relations and Our Public Schools."

In placing the blame for the predicament our schools are in today, Mr. Duke said that educators have been negligent in telling the people of their problems.

"We need a vitalized campaign to awaken the public and teachers," he contends that Alabama teachers must rise and demand respect, and stop apologizing for their profession. Quoting statistics on money spent last year by the citizens of Alabama, he stated "Last year 330 billion dollars was spent on liquor, tobacco, and entertainment, as compared to 13 billion spent on education."

"The most important thing next to the home and church in education," Many pay $50 yearly for bus extermination and pay only $15 for education."

Mr. Duke brought out the fact that we pay our baby sitters more than our teachers. Baby sitters receive fifty cents an hour, teachers, ten cents. He concluded by saying the teachers must demand higher salaries, and not settle for anything less than the local school boards must assume the responsibility of finding ways to support the schools so that the teachers can spend their time teaching and not "peddling garden seeds, camp stew, and running half-witted carnivals," to make a little money for certain projects.

After the main address, the program was opened for discussion. Mr. Bowdoin stated he felt the best use of our schools could be made by running them on a twelve month basis, and using the quarter system. This way less teachers could be employed, and the school facilities would be used to a maximum.

MISDIRECTED IDEALISM . . .

The United Nations appears doomed, and there should be no more fitting epitaph than this:

"Here lies a victim of misdirected idealism!"

If experience teaches anything, then the death of the United Nations will not have been in vain. But all too often we are reminded of the cliché that "if we learn anything from history, it is that we learn nothing from history."

But a cliché is true only half the time so let it be hoped that the death, first of the League of Nations, then of the United Nations, will cause a return to the wisdom of those philosophers who, from century to century, repeated eternal truths.

Closer attention to the wisdom of Aristotle and Kant, for instance, could have prevented the debacle of the United Nations.

More than two thousand years ago Aristotle wrote that "The ruler and his subject have the same interest!" and again: "Hunting is an art which we ought to practice against men who, though intended by nature to be governed, will not submit; for war of such kind is naturally just."

Yet misdirected idealism has led the premise that we must set free every Hottentot. The debacle in the Congo is a perfect illustration. The Congolese were far happier, and had more of the good things of life, before the withdrawal of their Belgian rulers because "The ruler and his subject have the same interest."

The United Nations was founded upon the misdirected idealism that it would be open to every nation which professed a desire for peace. How short are memories! Hitler screaming his devotion to peace, the Japanese invading China to preserve the peace of Europe. Every war in modern history has been launched in the name of peace.

Immanuel Kant provided the answer long before Napoleon, still longer before Hitler and Tojo. In "Perpetual Peace," Second Section, he outlined a plan for a working coalition of a community of nations, but he does not suppose for a moment that any nation ruled by a despot should be a member.

Kant envisioned a federation of free nations whose membership should be limited only to countries in which the governments are freely chosen by the people, and where the executive branch is separated from the legislative branch.

There would be hope for the peace of the world in a federation of nations composed of England, Scotland, the United States, Canada, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Australia, New Zealand, West Germany and other nations with governments chosen by the people in free elections.

21 YEARS AGO—

FROM OUR EARLY FILES . . .

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. McIntyre of Birmingham spent several weeks in Elba, guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McIntyre at their home in West Elba.

The Elba Chapter of the Intermediate Royal Ambassadors held their regular meeting in the home of Mrs. J. A. Timmerman, counselor. The meeting was called to order by the president, Billy Walsh. An interesting program, taken from the Alabama Baptist, was conducted by Mrs. Timmerman. At the close of the business, the meeting was dismissed with prayer by John Frank Lindsey.

The Chamber of Commerce held its regular meeting in the Elba Colored School and were served a tempting chicken supper by the members of the P.T.A. During the business session, officials of the school appealed to members and other interested citizens of the town for aid in installing a water system at the school. The matter was presented by Dave Simmons.

Superintendent Jenkins made a brief talk in which he thanked the Chamber for the help and told of the aims and ideals of the school. Other officials of the school expressed appreciation.

Plans Near Final Shape For Fall Festival

Tigers Turn From Hartford Defeat To Battle Samson

Friday night Elba went down to defeat, 12-0. Elba is definitely the better team but suffered many unfortunate setbacks, with penalties and fumbles taking their toll.

Elba had the ball in Hartford territory most of the game but did not have the scoring power.

Elba seems to be plagued with injuries at the quarterback position. Hudson broke his wrist in a practice session earlier this year. Enzor came in to fill the slot and carry the load.

Friday night when Enzor broke his collar bone, Layton came on to direct the attack in the second half.

It was noted that Durham and Cain turned in fine defensive games. Good luck to the Elba Tigers Friday night as they take on Samson at Samson.

Statistics Elba Hartford
